John Gillis, a coffee planter from Mexico and Maggie Dalton a school teacher, both lured into the North Country by gold fever, met at Fort Hamlin in the Koyukuk country in February of 1899 and promptly fell in love.

After river travel had closed for the winter the two were part of a party of ninety men and one woman. Among the party was a man called French Joe. When Maggie and John decided to get married, it was discovered there was no preacher in sight.

But there French Joe came into the fore, and arranged a marriage formula which could be recited. Soon the matter was fixed, and under a birch tree the marriage took place.

John Gillis handed two dollars to French Joe and spoke as follows:

By my Gee-pole I swear in under this tree,
A good and kind husband to Maggie Dalton I'll be;
To love and protect this maiden so frail
From the sourdough stiffs on the Koyukuk trail.

Then he grasped Maggie's hand and Maggie said:

Ten miles up from the Yukon, by the banks of a lake,
The hand of John Gillis for a husband I take.
No preacher is here, no chance for a ring,
But we'll get to the Koyukuk if it takes till next spring.

This troth having been plighted, French Joe swelled out his chest and in a loud clear voice said:

For two dollars in Cheechaco money I make this couple in matrimony,
He be a rancher and she a school teacher,
I do the job up just as good as a preacher.

Following the wedding there was general rejoicing. A large piece of foolscrap paper was found and each and every one signed his name while at the head of the paper was put the words of the marriage ceremony that took place in the Arctic Circle. The quaint words were also carved into the birch tree where they were found many years later.

Mr. and Mrs. Gillis went down to Nulato and from that point embarked for the outside and back to the coffee plantation in Mexico.

This story was told by Jack Welch, well known old timer, musher, prospector and pathfinder.

G. C. Dunlop, who lived near Strelna, Alaska found these marriage lines carved on the birch tree under which he camped in March of 1921.

TILLY BROCKMAN

Tilly a 39 year resident of Fairbanks was born Matilda Schuback in Gruenendeich, Germany (near Hamburg) the 14th of February 1900, the 11th child of 14. Her parents were Hinrich Schuback (died 1918) and Adelheit Schacht (died 1934).

In 1922 Tilly left Germany to live with her brother in San Francisco. Her first job was working for him in his grocery-delicatessen. Tilly married Ernest Koehler in 1923, of that marriage which ended in 1930 by divorce, one child was born, Irma (Born 21 May 1927 in San Francisco, married Quinten Bohnet January, 1948 at San Jose, California. They have four boys: Gary, Alan, Donn, and Lyle, and one girl: Diane. They presently reside at Auburn, California.).

Tilly Koehler arrived in Fairbanks in November 1936 on her great adventure. She came by boat to Juneau from Seattle and flew in a ten passenger Lockheed Electra piloted by Joe Crossen and Jerry Jones to Fairbanks.

Tilly's first job was at Bell's Hand Laundry located then at 3rd and Barnette. Her second position was at Palace Rooms, making beds (then located at 4th and Cushman, now located at Alaska Land). Her third place of work was at the Friss Coffee Shop, now where the Chena Building sits. In 1939 the name was changed to the Peerless Coffee Shop.

When Tilly arrived in 1936 the streets were only gravel and they were never plowed in the winter. Taxicabs were the only transportation in the winter. Residents didn't drive their cars in the unplowed streets. In 1936 it was the custom to keep all doors unlocked. (This changed when the Alaska Highway was built.) Wages were 50¢ an hour, man or woman, no matter what the work. Tilly lived in a two room log cabin with her daughter, Irma who arrive from San Francisco in May 1937. (Irma stayed with an aunt until Tilly was settled and school finished.) The cabin rented for $15. a month. It is situated in Garden Island and is still standing (near the News-Miner office). The cabin had an attached woodshed with an out-house as part of it. Once a week the Honey Bucket delivery man came, hauled the bucket away and left a clean one.

In 1943 Tilly married Henry Brockman. In 1945 they started homesteading at 6 Mile Chena Hot Springs Road. Tilly left her position at the Peerless Coffee Shop when they moved to the homestead. At that time there was no road, just a trail. In 1946-47 the Chena Hot Springs Road was built.

On the homestead, they started a chicken farm, mostly an egg business. They prospered until a fire occurred in 1949 in their chicken house. They lost one thousand chickens. The building was saved though damaged. The Fort Wainwright Fire Department came; Tilly served breakfast in shifts to the men fighting the fire.

Tilly went back to work at Peerless Coffee Shop. Tilly supplied the funds while Henry built the business up again. In November 1949 she bought the coffee shop from the owner. For three and one half years she operated the Peerless Coffee Shop. Cap Lathrop owned the property (coffee shop and 22 rooms), Tilly rented from him.

In 1950 Tilly divorced Henry Brockman. She resides on 30 acres at 6 Mile Chena Hot Springs Road. In 1954 she adopted a child, Gary Brockman (Born 18 September 1952 at Valdez, Alaska. He married 7 August 1971 Jacqueline Pacheco at Commerce City, Colorado. The young couple presently live with Tilly.)

In 1955 Tilly leased some property for five years and opened the Peerless Coffee Shop again! She served soup, chili, sandwiches, pastries and cake, plus one additional item, a speciality: Tilly's potato salad. Tilly is still asked to make her potato salad!

Tilly started to build her present home in 1961. In a four year period she completed her home. Tilly did all the work herself except the plumbing and electricity. A friend came over and hung the heavy front door. The basement is still being completed. She is pouring the concrete floor herself!

Tilly worked at Lathrop Highschool in the cafeteria full time, 1961-1967. She then began working half days until February 1975 when she retired! Tilly may have retired from the employment field, but hasn't retired from work. She's now working on her home, planning the planting of her garden and raising chickens this summer.

Tilly has left Fairbanks only three times in the past thirty-nine years: once in 1941 for 5 weeks, once to see a Seattle doctor for one day only, and again when her son Gary married in 1971 for 4 days. It is easy to see where Tilly's heart is!

Lyndon was born of George Funk and Mary Abigail Olsen on 9 November 1914 at Ferron, Utah. He married Nevenka Skocilic in Los Angeles, 3 March 1939. Neva was born 15 April 1915 at Vrata, Yugoslavia of Pava! Skocilic and Marija Jovanovic. After her mother's death, she came to America with her father.

In 1940 when the Funk's appeared on the Fairbanks scene, the population was three thousand, and two streets were paved: Fourth Ave. to Cushman St. Bridge and Second Ave. from Cushman to Noble Street. The two roads leading out of Fairbanks (Steese to Circle and Richardson to Valdez) were gravel.

At first they rented a log cabin on Illinois Street, a one, two, three house. So named for the construction of each room, one addition a year, front room, bedroom, kitchen.

Lyndon and Neva moved to a homestead in the spring of 1942, located at the end of the Steel Creek Road. This homestead is now at the corner of the Steel Creek Road and the Chena Hot Springs Road. They started with one large room, no partitioning.

Spring breakup in the country was equally spectacular and threatening. A memorable trip during breakup occurred one Easter morning. The Funk family was dressed in their special attire, topped with coveralls! Lyndon hitched the wagon to the tractor and then they traveled five miles over gullies and washed out places with water bubbling and running in all directions. Upon reaching the Steese Highway, they climbed into their parked car, leaving coveralls behind and proceeded to the LDS Church.

Lyndon hurt his back badly and needed a back fusion operation in 1950. They sold their homestead and moved to Ferron, Utah.

But Alaska was in their blood, in 1956 they returned. They purchased 160 acres across the street from their former homestead. They started a dairy farm on this land. Lyndon worked nights as an aircraft mechanic and Neva worked days as an accountant. One misfortune after another occurred, they lost a quonset hut full of grain by fire, their home burned to the ground, heifers died and Lyndon broke his arm! This ended their business. During these black hours, Craig their eldest child was called to serve a mission for their church, the autumn of 1962. Craig served two years in the mission field. Lyndon had a successful arm operation. Life was looking better for them.

Three children were raised on the homestead, Craig (Born 29 November 1941 at Fairbanks, married Loahna Thornhill 3 September 1965. Children: Dana, Lance, Cheryl and Brad.), Lynda (Born 17 April 1945 at Fairbanks, married Thomas Jackson 25 May 1967. Children: Tammy, Troy, Timothy and Terry.), and Paula (Born 14 May 1948 at Fairbanks, married Rodney Rigby 28 May 1969.).

Mark was born 19 August 1951 at Price, Utah, married Carol Ann Lane 7 October 1972. Child: Christian. Their last child Gwen was also born at Price, Utah on 1 March 1954, married Dennis Doty 19 May 1972. They have two children: Aaron and Calab. Of their five children, Mark is the only one that resides in Fairbanks.

Lyndon is currently building a home for them. Neva and Lyndon are proficient gardeners. Every year their garden is huge and successful. These past several years they have raised chickens and turkeys for slaughter in the fall.

Neva hopes to retire within the year. Together they are considering now their future.

Genealogy hints:

- 1.) When copying information from tombstones count the rows and the stones in each row. When identifying the stone you want, it is marked on your paper: row 5 headstone #3. Remember to write the name of the cemetery on the paper! You might find it necessary to draw a map so that the cemetery can be found again, much easier.

- 2.) When writing to relatives for data, try sending a self-addressed, stamped envelope, and an index card to be returned with the question on card and room for the answer to be placed on it.

NUGGETS OF INFORMATION
from our guest Tom C. Scott, Secretary
Eagle, Alaska Historical Society

The major aim of the Eagle Historical Society is to preserve and record the rich historical background of our town of Eagle and the surrounding area.

We are fortunate to still have many old buildings here in Eagle which represent the various periods of settlement and commercial development of our town.

Our Society is maintaining a never ending search for financial assistance which would allow us to stabilize and preliminarily restore many of these old buildings.

Besides our preservation activities, we are also busy collecting photographs, aboriginal relics and material objects which are illustrative of life, conditions, events and the activities of the past. These objects are then put on display in our Society's museum here in Eagle.

All things considered, we keep fairly busy and provide what we feel is a very important public service to our community.

A note from the Nugget Editor: Should you be interested in joining the Eagle Historical Society you can do so by sending a dollar to Tom in Eagle, Alaska 99738. The Eagle Historical Society puts out a very nice Newsletter a copy of which was sent to us. Thank you Tom.

FRANK AND OPAL STOWMAN

Franklin Pierce Stowman was born 9 April 1915 at Stowman, Blaine County, Montana. He married Opal Hurd 2 August 1948 at Fairbanks, Territory of Alaska. His parents, Ross Emerson Stowman (born 22 June 1884, Denver, Miami County, Indiana, died 24 May 1969, Portland, Oregon) married 23 April 1913 at Chinook, Blaine County, Montana Mattie Charlotte White (born 2 September 1887 at Wessington, Beadle, South Dakota).

Frank as a young man upon graduating from highschool went two years to a Normal School. He then took a job as a school teacher in a one-room school house teaching all 8 grades in South Dakota.

After his teaching spell, he went back to school and trained as an electrician. Then the war came and he spent the early 40's in the service.

It was upon his return from the service that he met Opal. Opal says it was 24 May 1946 at the White City Ballroom in Ogdon, Utah listening and dancing to a Dorsey Band that she first met Frank.

Opal Elizabeth Hurd was born 19 September 1916 at Pocatello, Bannock, Idaho. Her parents, John James Hurd (born 23 April 1885, Snowville, Box Elder, Utah, died 9 January 1960, Idaho Falls, Bonneville, Idaho) married 13 November at Pocatello, Bannock, Idaho Ida Chandler (born 31 October 1893 at Logan, Cache, Utah).

Until the time of their meeting in 1946, Opal had spent her adult days in sundry employment. During the Depression she worked as a waitress and clerk in a tiny Cafe-grocery for $5.00 a week plus three meals a day. (Nine hours a day, seven days a week --- that averages 8¢ an hour. She paid $1.00 a week for sleeping quarters.)

In August of 1941 she went to Los Angles, California for a vacation and a visit with relatives. She was there a day and her cousin invited her to come to work to see the airplane plant where she was employed. Opal went and that day was offered a job at 50¢ an hour. She accepted! Later she was promoted to a Junior Mechanic at 88¢ per hour. She worked with the BT13 (basic trainer for Army, Navy and Marines) and the B25. Eventually asthma became so bad for her she quit work and went back home to Pocatello, taking a job as a telephone operator. Her doctor advised her to move to Tuson, Arizona. So headed for Arizona on a Greyhound bus, she lost her seat to a soldier in Salt Lake City.

So since sitting at the Bus Depot in Salt Lake City isn't too appealing, Opal found work as a Junior Mechanic at Hill Field AF Base. (While there she pickled and stored Bombers, at 88¢ per hour.) She found housing in Ogden and traveled to Hill Field to work each day.

In 1947 Frank signed a contract with the U.S. Weather Bureau to work at Barrow, Alaska for one year. On the 4th of November 1947 Frank arrived at Barrow, Alaska via Alaska Airlines. When Frank found he would be transferred to the U.S. Weather Bureau Station in Fairbanks he wired Opal to come to Fairbanks so they could be married. Frank transferred to Fairbanks 3 July 1948 and Opal arrived 28 July 1948 via Pan Am.

For 24 years Frank worked as an electric inspector and Superintendent at the University of Alaska in College, Alaska. He retired in 1973.

Frank and Opal have three children: Sheila Rae born 10 May 1950, James Franklin born 9 October 1951 and John Ross born 20 June 1959 all at Fairbanks, Alaska.

Frank is now working for Panther Electric and is on the North Slope at Happy Horse near Prudhoe Bay, Alaska.
